With sadness we note the passing of two Washington Birders in 2020

In January the Washington Birding Community lost Ken Knittle – Founder of Washington Birder, Ken has been the driving force behind the effort to encourage county birding in the state. Ken paved the way for all the reporting in these annual reports. Together with his wife, Laurie, he kept the community together, first with the Washington Birder newsletter, then with the web version of the project. Ken was the first Washington Birder to tally 100 species in every county (in 1993) and then the first to show that 150 in every county was possible (in 2004).

Also in January, long-time Seattle birder Paul Webster passed. Paul was an active leader and teacher with Seattle Audubon, and together with his wife, Barbara, became an avid county lister – In 2011 he reached the milestone of seeing 100 species in each of Washington 39 counties.
